

Statement on Inchoo open-source custom code available via corporate website inchoo.net

Date: April 26th, 2018

To whom it may concern,

This statement is to confirm that Inchoo d.o.o. is a company incorporated under the laws of Republic of Croatia, with HQ in Osijek, Croatia, operating in the niche of eCommerce design, development and consulting. For our clients we offer various services within the aforementioned service groups.

Inchoo employees are, as a means of content marketing efforts, occasionally writing blog posts on our corporate website. Some of those posts include code snippets or sample extensions/modules to extend certain functionalities and workflows of various open-source software solutions, such as Magento.

All of the publicly available code snippets and extensions (available for download via Inchoo website and GitHub profiles of Inchoo employees) are created in a fully open source manner, available for further customizations and modification once downloaded, and Inchoo has no control over how those are used on any particular development or production instances of eCommerce websites globally.

Full responsibility on the testing, security and deployment of any such code that has been made available to our website readers and wider public relies on the users of such code.

Inchoo is not responsible or obligated to prepare updates for any such code and extensions for new Magento releases. This is why we advise strongly to reconsider using any of the versions of aforementioned code snippets and extensions/modules directly in production, and replacing them with adequate alternative solutions available via Magento Marketplace or via 3rd party extension authors' websites directly.

Inchoo is taking responsibility for code behaviour and privacy policy associated only with extensions we are making publicly available via company profile at Magento Marketplace.
